

Sponsored organ lessons for Bayanda Mthetho

Message from family members of the Donor

Recently, an anonymous donor made the remarkable pledge to cover the cost of Bayanda Mthetho's organ lessons for a period of six months. It is our privilege to know the donor. In fact we are close relatives. The donor lives a simple life overseas and engages in work which is precarious and humanitarian in nature. The generosity of the donation is remarkable for its disproportion to the financial reward received for that work. This phenomenon reflects much of the personality of the donor, whom we know as a deeply caring person, and the strength of the passion felt by the donor about Bayanda's achievements and need. We are inspired to affirm the donor in this passionate generosity. We have chosen as an opportunity to do so the donor's seventieth birthday, soon to be celebrated. We have pledged to extend the donor's pledge to cover the cost of fees for the full year of 2018. In so doing, our birthday gift to the donor has no carbon footprint about which to be concerned, needs no postal service for delivery and is enduring in nature. It generates for us all the priceless pleasure of investment in Bayanda's bright future as a remarkable young musician, contributing towards the development of his ability to inspire and to connect people through music. It also carries with it our love.
